PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

The past month's global equity performance lived up to the adage of selling in May. The Fund's comparative MSCI AC World index dropped by a meaningful -2.8%, bringing its year to date performance to a still healthy +10.1%.

The market had good reason to take a breather after the first four months' exceptional performance. Whilst investors were anxiously awaiting final agreement on the US-Sino trade negotiations, the unexpectedly strong reaction from the US administration on further trade tariffs on some Chinese goods triggered many investors to bank some of their profits. This was exuberated by counter reactions from the Chinese government and the US announcing tariffs on many Mexican imports. With the American consumer picking up the bill on these new import tariffs, fear for potential damage to consumer sentiment and high inflation became more of an issue. The continuing strong Dollar and lower growth in both industrial production and leading economic indicators also contributed to weaker investor sentiment.

Monthly drops in the World index in excess of 5% occurred seven times since 2010, with the current one being the only one off such a high base. It therefore does not raise particular alarm. Some technical indicators are now close to providing oversold messages.

Investors are expected to focus on the outcome of further trade negotiations at the upcoming G20 Osaka summit. Whilst long-term interest rates reflect weakening economic outlooks, most of the important US leading economic and various sentiment indices continue to stay constructive. Importantly also, US inflation expectations as reflected by breakeven interest rates remain weak, supporting equity valuations.

We are now well into the traditionally weak summer season for equities. We have not perceived it necessary to adjust our portfolio to any major extent, but are sharpening our pencils to utilise buying opportunities in outstanding businesses that may come on offer.
