PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

2020 has been one of the most extraordinary years, both in terms of personal and capital market experiences. Few could foresee at the beginning of the year how dire the global economic circumstances would turn out. Nevertheless, some investors did well despite the economic Armageddon.

The year taught us many lessons, in many forms. Many have learned a lot about humankind's ingenuity and ability to successfully develop a new vaccine within a tenth of the time it normally takes. Many especially learned not to take their health and longevity for granted. These valuable reminders may have otherwise been less thought about.

The capital markets also taught many participants numerous important lessons. We would phrase it as reminders of important investment principles, rather than the teaching of particular new lessons. Seldom before have we seen such a major difference in results that a sound investment approach can deliver against a more speculative approach to equities.

Whilst there are different forms of speculation, we refer more to an approach of short-termism and buying a business predominantly because of a cheap valuation. Many of those 'investors' found themselves in weak franchises when the virus struck, with sudden fears of structural failure or even obsolescence. Because of their low conviction, their fears, and the dire immediate economic outlook, many sold their holdings exactly at the wrong time.

The 2020 virus crisis delivered the most severe test any investment philosophy has gotten since the Great Depression. Our philosophy of only buying quality businesses where we have conviction of their sustainable growth potential and belief that we can hold them indefinitely withstood this test well and delivered a good result. It was not necessary to make any material changes to our portfolio, and we could rather expand on our number of holdings through the year. We continue to stay true to our strategic approach to investing, keeping our eye on the horizon rather than the next proverbial corner.
