FUND COMMENTARY

News about a new virus variant of concern is not so welcome, but is also not so unexpected, as we have seen before and may well see again. Investors again have to consider the economic implications for their holdings. Further to this, right at month end, Federal Reserve Chair Powell commented that they may consider wrapping up the taper of asset purchases 'perhaps a few months earlier' than previously thought. This combination seems to have interrupted the usual year-end stock market rally.

Regarding the new virus, authorities are acting much more swiftly this time. The public has also built more confidence in vaccine efficacy and new forms of therapeutics. They believe the necessary treatment can again be found, but until then, perceptions may be clouded by further uncertainties with its dose of capital market volatility.

Chances are that this may cause another step backwards in the stop-start global economic recovery process and postpone full recovery. We do, though, not currently have the perception that it will materially derail the economic recovery process or trigger a new US recession.

Against this backdrop, we do not believe it is the time to de-risk our portfolio to build up cash. Such a strategy has risk of leaving investors behind with devaluing cash in the bank, and not being able to re-invest at much lower prices. We would rather plan to utilise potential opportunities that may come up with market volatility to invest in structural growth businesses that were previously more expensively valued. This can be done at the cost of less solid growth opportunities.

These new uncertainties may continue to unsettle many tactically-oriented investors. For us, the most important consideration remains to invest strategically for sustainable strong organic growth beyond the immediate outlook, and consider new opportunities that would otherwise not have arisen.

The fund is available through certain LSPs which levy their own fees. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The TER displayed, which is calculated using data for the period 1 November 2018 to 30 September 2021, is based on the ASISA methodology, is higher than the expected TER of the fund due to the high weight allocated to past costs prior to the increase in fund size. The estimated actual TER payable by a client investing into the fund today would be 1.70%. Transaction Costs are a necessary cost in administering the Financial Product and impacts Financial Product returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of Financial Product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. Disclosed performance information is calculated after all fees and costs deducted. ² All fees inclusive of VAT where applicable.
