PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

October was a volatile month, as could be expected in the run-up to the uncertain US election and a new wave of virus infections in Europe and the US. Against this, the fundamental economic issues continue to improve.

It is useful to consider US economic progress through the recession and to compare it to the Financial Crisis (GFC) experience. Despite the depth of the Virus Crisis (GVC) recession, the US GDP has already recovered slightly ahead of the GFC experience at this stage. World trade (measured from the date the GFC and GVC struck) is currently well ahead of the GFC experience. US Retail Sales are back in positive territory, more than a year ahead of the GFC experience.

The third quarter earnings season is in full swing. Almost two thirds of the S&P 500 and just over half of the European BE 500 constituents have reported. The US results are generally much better than consensus expectations under these recessionary conditions. Three quarters of the number of S&P 500 results exceed Sales expectations and almost ninety percent exceed Earnings expectations. Further to this, the levels of these positive surprises are close to the reported result levels, implying in essence results being only half as bad as expected. Whilst the experiences in Europe lag those in the US, shareholders of US companies generally have good reason for celebrating.

Consensus S&P 500 earnings expectations for the next twelve months keep rising. They are already 14% ahead of their bottom levels in May. Further to this, a record number of those companies are reporting improving outlooks.

More certainty around the US election outcome should be around the corner. Whilst we hope authorities can deal better with the second virus infection wave, we are hopefully also not too far away from the introduction of successful treatments and vaccines.

INVESTMENT STRATEGY
