PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The first quarter of 2020 was truly unprecedented as the global spread of COVID-19 caused widespread economic shutdown and a sharp decline in risk-assets. With a decline of 20%, the S&P 500 registered its 5th worst calendar quarter in 70 years. The UK FTSE all share fell 25%. While some protection was found in conventional government bonds, even perceived 'safe-havens' saw price declines in recent weeks as investors raised cash balances. Against this backdrop, the Global Balanced Portfolio returned -9.4% in March, and -13.4% for the first quarter.

We spent considerable time in 2019 scrutinising our managers' portfolios and their prospects for a more mature phase of the economic cycle. Whilst we did not make material changes we have allocated more capital to 'defensive' equity managers who favour companies with strong balance sheets. These managers, including the Stonehage Fleming Global Best Ideas fund and the Evenlode Global Income fund, held up well in the first quarter. We saw more severe declines for cyclically bias managers, particularly Lyrical in the US and GLG in the UK. Our best performer was in the alternative space, Sandler US Equity, where the managers' net short positioning delivered double-digit positive returns for the first quarter.

ACTIVE MANAGER IN FOCUS

The Evenlode Global Income Fund aims to outperform developed world equities with an emphasis on quality businesses achieving dividend growth. The portfolio is relatively concentrated, consisting of 25-40 stocks primarily in the US and Europe. The research process focuses on companies with high and growing cash flows with resilient economic moats and strong pricing power. This approach offers the portfolio exposure to companies with non-cyclical growth characteristics that are expected to deliver strong long term returns, typically with less volatility than the broad market. Top holdings are currently Unilever, Henkel and Essilor.
