PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The Global Balanced Portfolio returned 1.9% in August, taking returns in 2021 so far to 7.5%.

Despite concerns surrounding the spread of the Delta variant and associated slowdown in economic growth, particularly in the US and Asia, risk assets have remained firm throughout the summer. Global equities rose 3.6% in August, while commodities also made gains. The US 10 year yield rose from 1.22% to 1.30%.

As part of our ongoing evaluation of portfolio performance, we consider five key strategy decisions being taken. The first of these is our bias towards equities. With equities continuing to make gains and outperform most other assets, this decision has remained beneficial throughout 2021 and particularly in August. We also consider our emphasis to corporate credit and emerging market debt in the fixed interest space, as an alternative to traditional government bonds where yields are extremely low. This was also positive last month, with government bond yields trending higher, as they have for much of this year having reached an all-time low in the middle of last year. Within equities, we consider two further key decisions; our choice of active managers and our regional bias. Both proved to be headwinds in August, with most managers trailing the broader market as large US technology stocks dominated market leadership. We saw good results from our passive allocations to the Nasdaq 100 in the US and the FTSE 250 in the UK, with both rising by c. 5.5% in GBP terms. Finally, we consider the benefit of our allocation to real assets, namely physical gold and broad commodities. While gold has been under pressure from a strengthening US Dollar and recovering economy for most of this year, the position returned 0.3% in August. Commodities have remained well supported throughout the summer and returned 0.7% in August as energy prices moved higher.
