PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The Global Growth Portfolio returned 0.3% in July, taking returns in 2021 so far to 7.4%.

Global equities were marginally lower for the month, as the rapid spread of the Delta variant amplified concerns that economic growth rates have moved past their peak. This narrative dominated investor sentiment, most notably within the bond market. The US 10 year yield retreated to 1.22% by the end of the month, down from 1.74% at the end of March. Leadership within equity markets was consistent with this backdrop, as the more defensive and high growth areas continued to perform better than economically sensitive 'value' stocks.

Our equity portfolio held up well against the backdrop of a more volatile month, benefiting from a blend of quality, growth and value strategies across regions. In particular, allocations to global managers such as Evenlode Global Income and Stonehage Fleming Global Best Ideas performed well, returning 1.9% and 2.4% respectively against a flat overall market. Allocations to Asia and Emerging Markets were costly, however, as reforms to the education sector in China triggered volatility towards the end of the month. Our preferred manager in this space, Veritas Asian, was down approximately 6.2% in July, but remained ahead of the EM and Asia market overall. We increased our allocations to the UK earlier this year, which worked well in July, as GLG Undervalued Assets and Vanguard FTSE 250 ETF returned 1.6% and 2.6% respectively. Having been out of favour for many years the UK market is showing signs of a revival driven by a strong economic outlook as vaccination coverage extends further. M&A activity has also picked up this year across industries, reflecting improved appetite for UK assets. We are tilting the portfolio towards this theme through specific allocations to cyclically-sensitive and domestically focused mid-cap space.
