PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The UK stock market showed a small decline in January when December inflation surprised investors and increased slightly from 3.9% to 4.0% and the Bank of England Monetary Policy committee pegged the Bank Rate at 5.25%. A similar situation was seen in the United States with the Federal Reserve keeping rates unchanged at 5.25% to 5.5% whilst inflation ticked higher at 3.4% against 3.1%. This suggested that interest rates might not come down until later in the year. With elections looming in both countries, politicians might welcome a reduction in interest rates to stimulate economic activity. In the UK it could mean revising the aggressive inflation target of 2.0% which is difficult to achieve in the short term. As the UK interest rate cut seems likely later in the year the focus shorter term will be on the benefits of taxation cuts announced by Chancellor of the Exchequer in his Autumn Statement which will come into effect in the new financial year. Some confidence has been returning in the housing market with a moderating mortgage rate which has stimulated house prices and moved higher in four consecutive months to give a year on year increase of 2.5%. The continued troubles in the Ukraine and Middle East creates a measure of uncertainty but the IMF forecast that World Economic Growth is likely to remain at 3.1%. However, investors will monitor the situation closely and hope that there is no escalation in these conflicts to destabilise

During the month energy prices have nudged higher and the attacks on merchant shipping in the Red Sea has created further uncertainty with some carriers avoiding the Suez Canal. It is unlikely that oil and gas prices will reach the previous heights and a measure of stability would be welcome. The sector has been shunned by investors but at current levels there is great value and we are happy to maintain our interest in the North Sea operators with strong balance sheets and healthy cash flows. Elsewhere smaller company shares, and particularly those listed on AIM have also been avoided by some investors and the more liquid shares have disappointed as fund managers being forced to sell to match withdrawals from their funds. This has created a number of anomalies which has helped us, as stock pickers, to position the portfolio to take advantage when investor confidence ultimately returns. The General Election might raise some doubt and uncertainty but we feel that both major parties will endeavour to encourage business and stimulate growth in smaller companies with a view to growing the economy.

During the month we continued, for technical reasons, to reduce our holding in MS International and trimmed a couple of other holdings. We made no major purchases but added to Bango (payment software), Made Tech (IT services) and Kistos (oil and gas) where prices had declined to attractive levels.

OUTCOME OF FAIR VALUE ASSESSMENTS (2024)

Our assessment confirms:

- The fund meets the needs of the target market.
- The intended distribution strategy remains appropriate.
- The fund provides fair value to customers.

INVESTOR PROFILE

The fund is appropriate for all investor types, including those with only a basic knowledge of funds. It is compatible with investors who do not need a capital guarantee (investors must be prepared to accept fluctuations in the value of capital, including the ability to bear 100% capital loss) and are seeking capital growth. Due to the volatility of markets, investors should be willing to accept price fluctuations in exchange for the opportunity of potentially higher returns. This is a long term investment and investors should have an investment time horizon of at least 5 years. The recommended holding period does not provide any guarantee that the objective will be achieved. This product is eligible for all distribution channels (e.g. investment advice, portfolio management, non-advised sales and pure execution services).

The fund is unlikely to be appropriate for those who:

- Are looking for full capital protection or full repayment of the amount invested, and those who want a guaranteed return
- Have no risk tolerance
- Who are unwilling to accept price fluctuations (volatility) in the value of the fund
- Do not intend to invest for the long term
