PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

World equity markets continue to recover following the very weak December performance. The Fund's comparative World index has registered a +6.4% performance year to date (£ terms). This performance over two months is already above the annual performance (+6.2%) since the inception of the particular index (1998), albeit below the +10.2% p.a. of the comparative World index for developed markets since its inception (1971) and the comparative S&P 500 index of +11.5% p.a. since its inception (1988). Investors may well wonder whether stock markets now already discount the full year's potential return.

We consider some relevant comparative performance statistics in this context. The current index value is only +2.3% ahead of the end 2017 figure. The last quarter of last year delivered a -10.7% performance and the current level still is -5.0% against the end third quarter 2018 level and -6.1% against the August 2018 peak level. The most recent stock market performance therefore seems more like a recovery in process than an overheated stock market.

The 2018 S&P 500 earnings season is almost completed, with generally good results thus far. Earnings are growing at +12.0% on a top-line growth of +6.0% (respectively +3.6% and +1.0% against consensus expectations) in US$. Projections for this year's earnings are for continuing absolute growth, but at a much more moderate rate of +6.7%. On the basis that equity bear markets only happen with earnings recessions we do not have reason to fundamentally fear the stock market.

Despite the higher share prices this year the higher earnings have brought one year forward S&P 500 P/E valuations close to long-term average levels (a 6% discount for historical earnings valuations). The historical Free Cash Flow valuation is at an 8% discount and the Dividend Yield valuation is close to its long-term average. Last year's arguments of expensive absolute valuations are therefore not valid anymore. We do not need the cheap relative valuation argument (against interest rates) to fundamentally stay well engaged with Equity investing.
